

PROCESS MANAGEMENT

Elemica QuickLink Network Solution

What if you could clearly see the status of all your business messages across your extended supply chain?

Knowing where your products are located, the levels of safety stock, or payment receipts for example are the business processes at the heart of a successful and profitable supply chain. Managing these types of tasks has traditionally been very manual, time-consuming, and error-prone. Elemica's Process Management tools deliver the kind of end-to-end visibility that brings real competitive advantages to your supply chain.

Elemica's QuickLink Network is the secure, reliable communication backbone for your extended supply chain.

Benefits

- Increased business visibility and context
- Faster identification of conditions
- Lower total cost of ownership

Key Capabilities

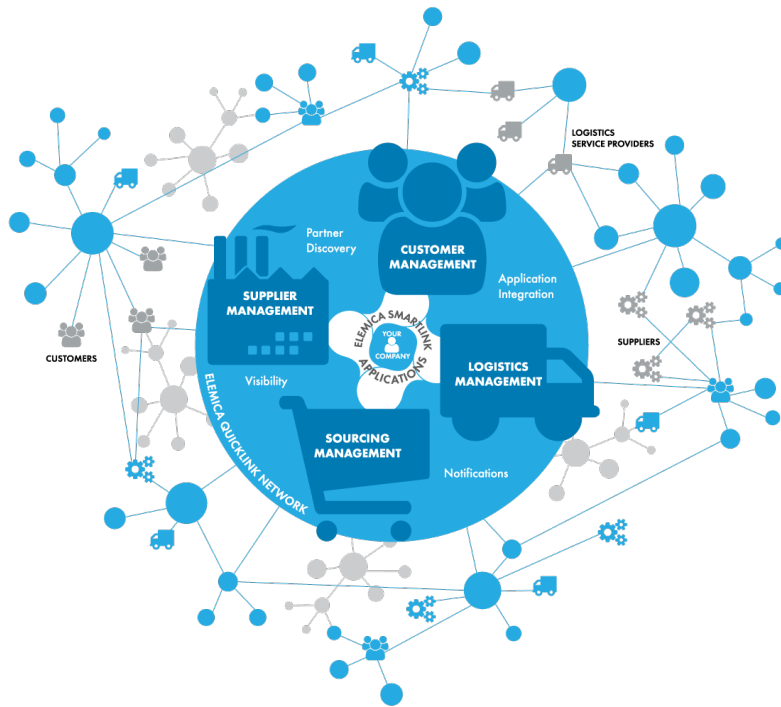

- Visibility into messaging, transformations, and validations
- Insight into connectivity status
- Exception based management
- Drill down capability

You can't control what you can't see. Executives, supply chain business leaders, and eCommerce specialists require visibility and control over their extended supply chains. This can range from crafting strategies to deliver tailored customer experiences to investigating why a customer's order failed to post in your ERP, or even receiving an alert that a tank will dip below safety stock next week.

Dashboard delivers real-time visibility into connectivity and messaging, answering important questions like; "What occurred once I sent a message? Was it received and accepted by my trading partner?"

Control Tower delivers fast, real-time insights at the business process level, answering important order to cash, procure to pay, and other related questions like; "Did the carrier deliver my product? Did my customer enter a goods receipt?"
